Bince the Exposition management leased a large part of the Catlin tract for World's Fair purposes, the Fark View Company has been fulfilling its agreement make the approaches to the various en trances harmonize with the landscape effects of the Fair proper, and in order to accomplish this John Scott & Sons, con-tractors, have had to remove two militon, two hundred and fifty thousand cubic feet of dirt.

It is also agreed that the Park View Realty Company will not permit any unsightly structures to be erected at the zarious entrances on the north side of the Exposition grounds, and though few leases have been closed it is said that comstition is so sharp for location in that family that the Park View management at choose concessionaires who will put in most attractive buildings for hotel, external or amusement purposes.

DOCTOR WILEY'S POISON SQUAD ENLISTED FROM EXPERT TOPERS.

Tempting Wine List Attracts Many to Scien-

KENTUCKY SENDS VOLUNTEER

Washington, Dec. 5 .- Applications for eats at Doctor Harvey W. Wiley's official and scientific wine party poured into the Bureau of Chemistry of the Agricultural Department to-day from all over the country. Such is the interest in the coming great experiment that not even the fact that they may be compelled to consume whole quarts of champagne has deterred self-sacrificing individuals from offering themselves upon the altar of sci-

When Doctor Wiley, chief chemist of the bureau, shall "open wine" at his party on October 1 it is expected that the scientific fervor of his guests will know no bounds and their scientific thirst no slakformaldehyde dinners given to the "polson squad club" at the Government boarding ouse was so great that the doctor decid ed to follow it up with several salicylic acid wine suppers, limited to a dozen guests, and see what further could be

The new entertainment, it is understood, will be a progressive affair-that is, the guests will progress through a wine list and see who can discover the most salicylic acid, as the "poison squad" diners did with the borax and formaldehyde bill

Everybody who has heard about it says it ought to be "an awfully lovely party," and ever since word got out that volunteer guests were wanted for it there has bee a sound from the Department of Agriculture as of many men stepping on each

"Salicylic acid," says the doctor, "is a preservative used only in liquids, such as wires, beers and sirups, and it is with this drug that we will make our forth-CHOICEST DRINKS ON LIST.

The wines to be explored include cham-pagne, Burgundy, Madeira, port, sherry, cognac, all the cordials and many other beverages, imported and domestic. Just who the twelve martyrs are who will be asked to drink large quantities of Wiley, but he has a wide choice. There is good poison detectors who have not steady drinking jobs. Washington is full of them. "Sir," declares one applicant, "while I tea. I am willing to make this great ex-periment in the interest of science and join your salicylic acid class. Too much wine is being preserved nowadaya. Let us do away with it. P. S.—I think I could ren-der the best service for science if placed at the champagne table."

"I am from Kentucky, sir," says another, "and, while I don't see whisky on your list, I feel that I could render you valuable services in that line in your important investigations. There is more bad of their supper series.

whisky being drunk in this country today, sir, than a self-respecting Republic ought to stand for. I have endeavored to abolish it wherever I found it, and it you will add whisky to the list I think I interest of science, I would persevere, no matter how long the experiment lasted or how large the amount of liquor required to be consumed at each sitting."

"My dear sir," avers another, "I have been drinking whisky and things for seventy-five years, and if there is any kind of acid or fusel oil I couldn't detect I haven't yet met up with it. From my long experience I think I ought to make a valuable member of your 'Happy Days' class."

"Dear man," offers another, " as a body that knows the difference between Scotch and creosote, I tender my services. I don't care how much salicylic acid I get into my system."

SLOW POISONING A JOY. "Dear sir," says a fifth, "I am quite willing to submit to slow poisoning, if you'll make it slow enough.

On the shelves of Doctor Wiley's office are rows of tall-necked wine bottles and long, low, rakish bottles labeled "Rum" and "Ale." They are for investigation. A rumor that the salicylic acid test was to be made by water only got abroad today, and for quite a while there was nothing doing about the altar of science. Later, however, it was learned that the acid was to be disguised in real wine, and then there was a sudden rise in the martyr market.

The rumor that the members of the "polson squad" who can successfully reeat the words "salicylic acid" at the close of the first day's experiment will be given a prize, proves to be incorrect. So far as is known no special classes for mixed drinks will be formed.

Special attention will be paid to the alleged falsely labeled foreign wines. The manager of the Spirits Department of the army and navy stores, one of the leading wine experts of Europe, has declared to Doctor Wiley that no chateau or vineyard wines are shipped to the United States, and that the "American people drink nothing but labels."

Doctor Wiley's scientific class probably will be given a special course in labels. After the first few lessons the class probably will be able to tell at a flash the difference between a yellow label and a sil-The experiments may last for weeks with the proper intervals between times.

Considerable interest has been manifested as to whether Doctor Wiley will invite to the banquet Mr. Wolf Weisman of Ho-boken, who was 103 years old week before never since he was a boy had he drunk
